

Beyond Blankets:

Smallpox, Human Agency, and American Indian Mortality

The Indigenous Studies Program presents:

Dr. Paul T. Kelton,
Associate Professor and History Department Chair

Kansas Union, Level 5, Parlors
Tuesday, April 24
12:00 pm

Professor Kelton will discuss the real and imagined incidents of biological warfare against North American indigenous peoples from first contacts through the mid-19th century. Employing his own research, he will put American Indian mortality from germs within the larger colonial context to which it rightfully belongs.
